

NOODLEBIB

Noodlebib assists you in creating a perfectly formatted MLA, APA, or Chicago style bibliography. Start at the MCC library homepage:

<http://libguides.middlesex.mass.edu/library>

Select the Citing Sources Tab.

Click on the link for Create a Noodlebib Account.

The first time you log in you must Create a Personal ID. We recommend that you use your MCC A# and password as your login for this account.

Sign into the account you created.

Click on  and choose between MLA , APA or Chicago/Turabian depending on what your instructor requires. Choose Citation level-if you are choosing MLA choose MLA ADVANCED

Enter the topic or title of your paper in the area Description. This will not print out anywhere, It's just to identify the item.

Click on Create Project.

Click on Bibliography on the tool bar at the top of the screen

Please don't hesitate to ask a librarian if you need clarification, citations can be very tricky!

For each entry start at the top by using the drop menu, Select a Citation Type.

After making a choice, click on Create Citation.

Noodlebib provides some SHOW ME screens if you are not sure what you are using. Click the green Continue button if you wish to skip those.

Clicking on each box to fill in brings up a help box, this is useful in order to give you capitalization and other important information.

Fill in the boxes on the succeeding screen and click on  at the bottom of the screen.

For help in filling in the fields, click on the MLA or APA GUIDE blue tab in the top right corner of the screen. Not all fields must be filled in. VERY generally speaking you will need author, publication title or book title, article title, author(s), publication date, publisher, page numbers.

When complete, click on . Noodlebib does NOT spell check.

On the right side of the next screen, you can edit or delete any entries or click on In text reference to show you how to do an in-text reference.

Then return to the top of the page and begin your next entry.

When you're ready to print your list of sources, click on the Print/Export to word button and the word document will open. You should now have a perfectly formatted and alphabetized WORKS CITED (or Bibliography) that you can print, save and spell-check. Be careful with the spell check as some items in a bibliography are appropriately abbreviated.
